

Lockheed Martin CIO Joseph Cleveland Named Premier 100 IT Leader By Computerworld Magazine

January 6, 2004

Award Recognizes Global Systems Integrator's Innovative IT Leadership

BETHESDA, Md., Jan. 6 /PRNewswire-FirstCall/ -- IDG's Computerworld Magazine announced that Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) Chief Information Officer Joseph R. Cleveland has been selected as one of the Premier 100 IT Leaders for 2004.

The annual award cites individuals who foster ideas and creative work environments, envision innovative technology approaches to business problems and effectively manage IT strategies. Selected by Computerworld editors, the Premier 100 includes CIOs, CTOs, vice presidents and senior IT directors from leading companies.

"Being selected as one of the top 100 IT executives bears witness to the efforts of a great team of IT professionals throughout Lockheed Martin," said Cleveland. "This is a tremendous end result of focused dedication to people, processes and technology."

Along with being the Lockheed Martin CIO, Cleveland is also the President of the Corporation's Enterprise Information Systems division. Enterprise Information Systems is Lockheed Martin's internal Information Technology service provider, responsible for providing technology-based solutions to the Corporation's businesses. Based in Orlando, Enterprise Information Systems operates one of the world's largest Windows NT networks and processes more than 42 million e-mails monthly at 600 sites in 35 countries.

Each year Computerworld launches a nationwide search for nominations of technology professionals who have shown leadership in their organizations through technology. The list of Computerworld's elite group of top IT strategists -- the Premier 100 IT Leaders for 2004 -- is available at www.computerworld.com.

"IT leaders are responsible for a wide variety of initiatives that are vital to successfully doing business -- ranging from customer service to security assurance to cost-effective supply chains," said Maryfran Johnson, editor in chief of Computerworld. "Our Premier 100 IT Leaders represent an elite class of technology thought-leaders who truly practice what they preach about using IT to creatively solve business problems and enable new services."

Headquartered in Bethesda, Md., Lockheed Martin (NYSE: LMT) employs about 130,000 people worldwide and is principally engaged in the research, design, development, manufacture and integration of advanced technology systems, products and services. The Corporation reported 2002 sales of $26.6 billion.
