

Information*LOCKHEED MARTIN ANNOUNCES AGREEMENT TO ACQUIRE TITAN CORPORATION

BETHESDA, Md., Sept. 15, 2003 – Lockheed Martin Corporation (NYSE:LMT) and Titan Corporation (NYSE: TTN) have entered into a definitive agreement for Lockheed Martin to acquire Titan. Under the merger agreement, shareholders of Titan may elect to receive $22 per share in cash, an equivalent amount of Lockheed Martin common stock or a combination. Shareholders who elect to receive all cash or stock will be subject to pro-ration, so that the aggregate amount of cash and stock paid will each equal 50 percent of the merger consideration. The total value of this transaction, including the assumption of about $580 million of Titan debt, is approximately $2.4 billion before accumulated tax benefits.

Lockheed Martin expects the proposed acquisition to be immediately accretive to its earnings and to fund the cash portion of the merger consideration using existing cash and short-term investments. The transaction has been approved by the boards of directors of each company and is expected to close in the first quarter 2004, subject to approval by Titan shareholders, government regulatory reviews and other closing conditions described in the merger agreement.

San Diego-based Titan Corporation provides command, control, communications, computers, intelligence, surveillance and reconnaissance (C4ISR), enterprise information technology (IT) and homeland security products and services, with over 11,000 employees in 41 states and 12 countries.

Nearly all of Titan's sales are to the U.S. Government. For the first six months of this year, Titan reported sales of about $815 million, an increase of 24 percent compared to the first half of 2002.

Titan provides comprehensive services, solutions and communications products through over 2,000 contracts and transformational programs to a wide range of customers, including the Department of Defense, Department of Homeland Security, intelligence and various civil agencies.

“Titan provides additional presence within the U.S. Government customer base and expands our competencies. Titan is an excellent fit with Lockheed Martin, and its acquisition is consistent with our disciplined growth and cash deployment strategies,” said Vance Coffman, Lockheed Martin chairman and chief executive officer.

“Titan’s outstanding record of sales growth and the quality of its workforce made this transaction very attractive to us. This workforce, together with our highly skilled people, allows us to provide more cost effective and robust solutions to customers of both companies. Our combined capabilities will continue to enhance the Defense Department’s transformational systems and focus on the evolving threats that face our country,” Coffman added.

“We are extremely proud of our track record of growth and dedicated service to our nation during our 22-year history,” said Titan chairman, president and chief executive officer Gene W. Ray. “Lockheed Martin is acquiring Titan to expand and grow the business. Together we will offer a broader spectrum of system and IT solutions to our customers. As such, I am confident that this match is a winner for our customers and employees.”

Among other terms, the merger agreement provides that the exchange rate for shareholders who receive stock will be determined by dividing $22 by the average of the daily high and low sales prices per share of Lockheed Martin common stock on the NYSE composite transaction tape for the 10 trading days preceding the third trading day prior to the effective date of the merger, subject to specified collars. If the average price exceeds $58 (the “Upper Collar”), then the exchange rate will be calculated using the Upper Collar instead of the average price. If average price is less than $46 (the “Lower Collar”), then the exchange rate will be calculated using the Lower Collar instead of the average price.

Headquartered in Bethesda, Md., Lockheed Martin employs about 125,000 people worldwide and is principally engaged in the research, design, development, manufacture and integration of advanced technology systems, products and services. The corporation reported 2002 sales of $26.6 billion.

Headquartered in San Diego, Ca., The Titan Corporation is a leading provider of comprehensive information and communications systems solutions and services to the Department of Defense, intelligence agencies, and other federal government customers. As a provider of national security solutions, the company has approximately 11,000 employees and current annualized sales of approximately $1.7 billion.
